La Bohème

Giacomo Puccini's La Bohème is one of the world's most popular and captivating operas. With its emotionally charged story of two star-crossed lovers and some of Puccini's most ravishingly beautiful music, La Bohème never fails to enthral audiences.

Directed by Martin Lloyd-Evans, with costumes designed by Dulcie Best and a 1940's Parisian set designed by Neil Irish, the opera brings into focus the fragility of young hearts entangled in a struggle for life and love amidst the harsh realities of bohemian life.

Sung in Amanda Holden's renowned English translation by a combination of talented young professionals, Garden Opera's singers and chamber musicians take you on a journey of romance, joie de vivre and heartbreak.

"The small touring opera company without equal in Britain."

Opera Now

"...so high is the overall standard of musicianship – the six-piece band led by Peter Bridges is formidable...the piece's essential humanity registers as clearly as the jokes."

The Guardian, 2005
